Soviet Action Is Sensation On Parley Eve

Delegates Fear Soviet-American Conference On Atomic Power May Lead To Crisis

SECRETARY BYRNES FACES HARD TASK

BULLETIN
LONDON, Jan. 9.—(INS)—U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes declared today that there was no thought of revising the Moscow resolution dealing with atomic energy and that there was no necessity to discuss any questions further with Soviet Commissar V. M. Molotov.

By CHARLES A. SMITH
U. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Soviet announcement of Deputy Foreign Commissar Andrei Vishinsky's recall to Moscow on the eve of the opening of the UNO general assembly created a first-class sensation today among delegates from all nations.

Fears were expressed that the Soviet-American controversy over the Moscow conference atomic power control resolution might lead to a major crisis which would split the UNO wide open at the opening of its first full open meeting.

The forthright Russian statement made it obvious to observers that Byrnes now faces a tremendously difficult task in explaining the American attitude to Russia.

May Demand Clarification
It was felt that Russian bewilderment and mystification over the whole matter foreboded the possibility that the Soviet would insist on a clarification of the whole atomic resolution in private meetings with the Americans before even taking part in the atomic power control commission.

Byrnes' difficulties within the American UNO delegation were markedly increased by the Russian statement. Sources close to Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg predicted that he would stand pat on his determination to act as a watchdog, preventing anyone from discovering United States atom bomb secrets.

He is expected to insist on complete fulfillment of Byrnes' and President Truman's assurances regarding the American interpretation of the Moscow declaration, and of President Truman's statement that no American atom bomb secrets will be disclosed to other nations.

Not 'Beating Gun'
Previous to the Russian announcement the British state department sought to assure the Soviets that Britain and the United States were in agreement.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Clock on the church on the square has apparently taken another vacation.

Wonder how that array of New Year's resolutions is holding up by now? They're nine days old if they have lasted to the present.

Familiar barrels for the collection of shoes to be shipped to Europe appeared on the downtown streets Tuesday. From all appearance, the barrels will soon be filled with the shoes of citizens who are making deposits in the containers.

Motorists were urged today by the state revenue department not to drive during blizzards unless it was absolutely essential. T. Elmer Franzen, director of highway safety, pointed out that car owners should "drive more slowly" and turn on lights during daytime blizzards.

State Police Commissioner C. M. Wilhelm advised motorists today to have motor vehicles inspected before the January 31 deadline. "The owner who procrastinates may find

Sympathy Of Nation Reaches Chicago Home

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(INS)—There was ample evidence today of how the brutal kidnap-murder of Suzanne Degnan, six, affected the average American citizen. From every state in the Union came offers of sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. James E. Degnan, parents of the child.

Many Aid Offers
Police disclosed that letters and telephone calls had deluged the home from all over the country offering the parents enough money to meet the kidnaper's $20,000 ransom. When news of the little blue-eyed, blonde-haired girl's ghastly death was disseminated, many of the same people sent condolences.

One offer to aid the Deganans was made by a stranger, who said he would lend them $10,000 at no interest to help pay the ransom. That was before Suzanne's head was found in a sewer catchbasin.

A trans-Atlantic telephone call from the London Times advised Degnan that all England was "shocked at the crime" and asked if anything could be done to help the family.

Thanks Police-Newspapermen
Degnan voiced his heartfelt thanks for all the aid offered and the help extended by police and newspapermen. In a statement to the newspapers Degnan said:

"No group of men in the city's history tried to help police in need

All Overseas Service Men Not Needed To Be Returned For Discharge

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has sent out instructions to all theater commanders to ship to the United States for discharge all men who are not needed, regardless of their length of service or number of points.

This was revealed today as an army spokesman disclosed that Pacific occupation troops will be cut instead of July. At the same time, it was also learned that:

1. All Pacific men now qualified for discharge—180,000—will be home by the end of this month.
2. The army plans to have all men with two and one half years service home by April and those with two years service returned by the end of June.

To Reduce Compliments
The Eisenhower order was designed to follow up earlier instructions to theater commanders to cut their personnel requirements to the bone. It was prompted by complaints

Possibility Of Phone Tieup Is Seen In Strike

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(INS)—Western Electric company's 6,000 telephone installation workers walked out on strike today, raising the possibility of a nationwide tieup in telephone service later in the week.

The strike began at 11 o'clock this morning (EST) as scheduled in support of union demands for a $6 per week wage increase. Western Electric's 14,500 other employees have been on strike for seven days.

Some 500 members of the Association of Communications Equipment Workers gave the walkout a premature start by jumping the gun by one hour and halting work at Newark, N. J.

All told, locals in 42 states are affected by the wide dispute.

Hospital Visiting Rules Are Amended

Two Persons From Immediate Families Allowed To Visit Patients In Hospitals

At a meeting of the staff of the New Castle hospital, held Tuesday evening, the decision was rendered that the visiting ban in the hospital be relaxed somewhat due to the decline of the influenza epidemic, which has been prevalent the past number of weeks.

The staff decided that two members of the immediate family would be eligible to visit patients in the New Castle hospital between the hours of 2 and 4 in the afternoon and 7 and 9 in the evening.

Robert Youngquist, administrator of the James Memorial hospital, announced that the same procedure would be followed in the North side institution.

Flood Danger Not Imminent

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(INS)—The Weather Bureau reported today that sudden thaws have brought no danger of floods in the Philadelphia area.

The Schuylkill at Fairmont dam remained four feet below flood level, officials said. At Trenton, the Delaware river stood at 3.7 feet, where the flood stage is 12 feet.

The Lehigh river at Lehighton fell after rising to a crest of 7.75 feet. Flood level is nine feet. Somerset and Cambria counties in western Pennsylvania reported swollen streams pouring over low banks.

War Crimes Tribunal Hears Demands For Conviction Of Nazis For Murder

WANTON KILLING OF ALLIES CITED

BY PIERRE J. HUSS
U. S. Staff Correspondent

NUERNBERG, Jan. 9.—The conviction of Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel and Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl for murder was demanded today before the war crimes tribunal in the "name of the civilized world."

The demand was voiced by British Assistant Prosecutor G. D. Roberts on behalf of slain British commandos and American prisoners.

Roberts cited the deliberate, wanton killing of British commandos after failure of two-man torpedo attacks on the former Nazi battleship Tirpitz in Trondheim Fjord, and the murder of British and American prisoners in April, 1941.

Then he thundered: "Few records of the murder of brave men are more poignant than these."

"I demand the conviction of Keitel and Jodl in the name of the civilized world."

Shown Signed Orders
Keitel Jodl took up a signed order. The first three were presented by the British while U. S. Assistant Prosecutor Walter Rudeno of Davenport, Iowa, stalked Rosenberg as the oldest member of the Nazi party, even senior to Hitler.

Strike Slows Down Commercial Life In New York City

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(INS)—The financial and commercial life of the world's greatest city was slowed down to the pace of the gay nineties today by a strike of 7,000 Western Union workers.

The strike, effective in New York, Long Island and Northern New Jersey, reduced telegraph messages to a trickle. The company conceded that not more than 15 per cent of the 175,000 messages it handles daily were going through.

Even the most urgent messages, including those with government priority, were being delayed an hour or more. It was theoretically possible to telephone Western Union headquarters and dictate messages to be handled by supervisory employees who are not on strike.

Two Janitors Are In Custody In Girl's Death

Arrested By Police After Discoveries In Atrocious Kidnap-Murder At Chicago

TAKEN IN AREA OF FIENDISH CRIME

(BULLETIN)
CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(INS)

—Chicago police early today seized a second kidnap-murder of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan whose body was dismembered and cast into sewers near her home in the Edgewater district of the city's North Side.

The second man taken into custody is Desere Smets, 35, janitor of a building only a block from the palatial James E. Degnan home on Kenmore avenue where little Suzanne was taken from her bed and carried down a ladder at three a. m. Monday.

Police described Smets as an associate of Hector Verburg, 65-year-old janitor of an apartment building in the same neighborhood who was seized late yesterday and gridded through the night about the fiendish killing of the child.

Detectives said Smets was once the janitor of the building at 5901-03 Wintthrop avenue where Verburg is now employed and where the murder room was found.

Taken Late Yesterday
Verburg and his wife, Mary, were taken into custody late yesterday after detectives discovered bits of flesh and bloodstains in three laundry tubs in an apartment building at 5901-03 Wintthrop avenue of which Verburg is the janitor. The building is a little more than a block from the Degnan residence.

From the furnace of the building police recovered some bone particles which they believed were part of a human arm. Except for the arms, all parts of the child's body had been found in four sewer catchbasins in the neighborhood.

Also found in the small laundry room containing the telltale wash tubs were a 14-inch hacksaw and some rags which appeared to have been blood-soaked. These bits of evidence were discovered after the janitor of another apartment building

No Decision On Rebuilding Old Knitting Mill

Future Plans Are Held In Abeyance Awaiting Settlement By Insurance Companies

Plans for rebuilding the old Knitting Mill property, owned by the Castle Showcase company, at South Mill and White streets, which was swept by fire early Tuesday morning, are being held in abeyance awaiting adjustment of the fire loss by the insurance authorities. Joseph Bordonaro of the firm of Bordonaro and Conner, owners, stated today.

It is believed by the owners that if the structure can be rebuilt, the third floor will have to be taken off anyhow, as most of the top floor was burned off by the blaze, which caused firemen a "five-hour battle, and swept the building from top to bottom.

City Foreman Edward E. Cross, who was overcome by smoke while fighting the fire, is still in the New Castle hospital, but is expected to be released from there tomorrow.

One day he feels like climbing trees or entering a race, and strength flows through his weary arms, a smile illumines his face. This springy weather may portend a winter mild and light but gosh it gives the flu germs cause to roam the streets at night. Employment Increase Seen

State Industry Has Virtually Completed Switch Over From War Production

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(INS)—Pennsylvania industry today has virtually completed the switch-over from war production and fuller employment in the commonwealth awaits only more adequate supplies of labor and materials.

That conclusion summarized an optimistic year-end report released by the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia on the basis of data compiled until the end of November.

The greatest readjustments in job opportunities in Pennsylvania already have been made," the report stated.

Industrial employment, now below the wartime peak, "will increase in view of the great need for replenishing run-down stocks of consumer goods and replacement of worn out and obsolete equipment in almost every line of industry," the bank predicted.

The report disclosed that by last October employment in the state's industries had dropped by more than 400,000 from the war maximum of 1,594,000, but that in November jobs had climbed to 1,200,000, or 23 per cent above the 1939 level.

Employment increases during the war registered in every major industry except textiles and leather.

The greatest rise was reported by the steel industry, whose employment rose from 234,000 before the war to 418,000 in the fall of 1943, according to the Federal Reserve.

Urges OPA Drop Price Control On Fruits, Vegetables

President of National Fresh Fruit
And Vegetable Distributors
Urges Action

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(INS)—William J. McCormack, president of the National League of Wholesale Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Distributors, today urged abandonment of OPA controls on fresh fruits and vegetables.

"I fear the stultification of effort and incentive that is being forced upon us by rules, regulation and interference with the national trend of business and home life," McCormack told the league's 54th annual convention in Philadelphia.

McCormack also scored what he termed regimentation of labor in this country "dominated in many instances by selfish, impractical leaders who exploit labor for their own benefit."

State Secretary of Agriculture Miles Hosi declared that new distributors were destined to make Pennsylvania an even more important area for the production of vegetables, some of them not previously grown in this area.

DEMAND MADE FOR CONVECTION OF KEITEL-JODL

Keitel and Jodl were shown their own signed orders which sent Nazi armies sweeping across Europe against Poland, Scandinavia, the Lowlands, France and Russia.

Secret minutes of a defense council meeting in 1935 revealed that Jodl, then a lieutenant-colonel, had presented plans for the camouflaging of mobilization inside Germany, as well as the so-called demilitarized Rhineland.

Roberts said both army officers were aware of willfully violating the Versailles treaty and Keitel was said to have recommended "deliberate lying."

Claim Proven False
Von Ribbentrop's claim that he served merely as Hitler's voice was proved to be false. In 1939, he said among other things.

"The task of German foreign policy must be to further a wave of anti-semitism abroad."

Presenting an avalanche of official documents to prove the Ribbentrop swung a "diplomatic black-jack" with vigor when called upon by the Nazi party, Ryff ripped the mask from Ribbentrop's actions.

Ribbentrop sat in the dock before the international war crimes tribunal like a flustered old woman. He tried vainly to recapture the chest pounding attitude of pre-war days when he conducted the foreign policy of Nazi Germany.

During Ryff's presentation of evidence Ribbentrop took many notes in an effort to convey the impression that he would blast the allegations to pieces when it came time to present his defense.

Despite his effort to create a good impression, Ribbentrop looked like an aging man who felt sick inside.

TWO JANITORS ARE IN CUSTODY IN GIRL'S DEATH

ing near the Degman home found a piece of wire looped at one end and to which clung some strands of blonde hair. Suzanne was blonde-haired.

Believe Wire Used
Detectives believed the two and a half foot length of wire was used to strangle the child before her head and limbs were severed from the body.

The wire was found under the rear stairway of a building where Bertil Westerlund, who made the find, is employed as janitor. Samples of Verburgh's handwriting were taken at the detective bureau. Detective Sergeant Jack Hanrahan announced that they showed a striking similarity with the S's, T's and Y's in a crudely written note demanding $20,000 ransom which was tossed onto the floor of Suzanne's bedroom.

A lie detector test of Verburgh also was made but police did not make any report on the results. Throughout the night the stocky Verburgh maintained that he had no connection with the brutal crime. He said:

"I don't know a thing about this. Why should an old man like me kill a little girl?"

However, he did admit that he knew Suzanne by sight.

Tenants of the building in which the murder room was found expressed shock and surprise over the discovery. They described Verburgh as a diligent and faithful worker and the sort of person who "wouldn't harm a fly."

No formal charge was placed against the aged janitor pending a more conclusive outcome of the police investigation.

from some troops overseas that they were being held there without anything to do.

Meanwhile, Rep. May (D) Ky., said that he will confer shortly with members of his house military affairs committee to determine whether an investigation of the army's new slowdown demobilization program is warranted.

May, vacationing in Miami, was reached by telephone. He plans to return to Washington Friday or Saturday.

An army spokesman explained that the slow-up rate for men in the European and Mediterranean theaters far harder than in the Pacific. The officer said:

"The European theater is more greatly affected because more men are eligible for discharge and more are becoming eligible."

He added, however, that war veterans in both theaters will be out by July 1, including men "with less than two years service."

Demobilization Picture
This is the demobilization picture given for the Pacific:

All men now qualified for discharge from the service will be home by the end of this month. There are 180,000 in this category. Their departure will take 60,000 men.

Planned strength of the occupation force by May has been cut to 375,000 of which 121 thousand men will be eligible for return home at that time. Therefore, replacements must average 30 thousand monthly.

This is the demobilization set up in the European and Mediterranean theaters.

There are 650,000 men remaining of whom 100,000 are eligible for discharge now. Planned strength for July 1, 335,000. This would be reached by reductions of 53,000 each month in addition to an average of 27,000 released each month by replacements.

Four hundred thousand men, aside from those presently eligible for discharge—would be qualified to come home if the length of service factor were set at two years.

States were not attempting to beat the gun on the UNO conference by working out a joint policy on the atomic power control problem or other controversial issues.

The foreign office issued a statement to this effect after British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin conferred with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes in the latter's private suite at Claridge's hotel.

After that discussion Bevin told newsmen:

"Everything went off fine."

It was authoritatively stated that the two statesmen did not discuss political matters during their meeting. The visit was described as a courtesy call.

Despite this report it was generally felt in London that the atomic control problem had featured in the conversation between Byrnes and Bevin.

come quickly—by tomorrow at the latest. The industry, if the strike call stands for Monday, will have to start several days in advance to bank furnaces and make other preparations for a walkout.

On big company was reported by OPA sources to have already notified its suppliers not to ship any more raw materials until further notice. The company was not identified.

The three-man fact-finding board appointed by President Truman to investigate the steel wage dispute has been waiting patiently for some reply to its request to the parties to resume negotiations. The panel was said to be ready to fix a date today for hearings in the case. If this action does not occur it will be a pretty good indication that collective bargaining prospects are bright.

An industry spokesman said the steel companies are awaiting word from the government on prices before taking any step. The industry previously rejected the CIO demand for a $2 a day wage increase, contending that it needs higher prices even on the basis of present costs.

President Truman has stated that there will be a slight increase in steel prices when OPA completes a study of the industry's financial position for the final quarter of last year.

his car out of service in a repair shop when the inspection period expired. Wilhelm said: "If a motorist operates an uninspected car after midnight January 31, he may be fined."

From a Fairmont avenue resident comes a note to Pa Newc describing a "deplorable condition" that exists in the Northern section of the city in the vicinity of George Washington Junior High. The resident reports that daily she can watch from her window "some good citizens" pull up in a car and take out a box on the side of the road along North Mercer street. This not only mars the scenery but is very selfish on the part of individuals who dump their refuse there when city dumps are provided. The Fairmont resident complained.

NEPHEW OF LINCOLN

LAKEWOOD, Colo.—(INS)—William Burton, who lives alone in a modest cottage in Lakewood, Denver suburb, is a living nephew of Abraham Lincoln, but few of his neighbors knew that until the recent celebration of his 89th birthday attracted community attention. Burton, whose mother was the president's sister, remembers a visit Mr. Lincoln made to the Burton family at their farm outside Lexington, Ky., in 1861. At the time he was 5 years old.

STEAL PURSE, MONEY

Sneak thief entered the Howard Hunter home, 23 East North street, and stole a purse containing $55.00, last night. The occupants were in another section of the house when the theft occurred.

People Are Adopting This Sensible Plan . .

Instead of avoiding the subject of funeral service, most people now look upon it as a necessity concerning which they should be informed.

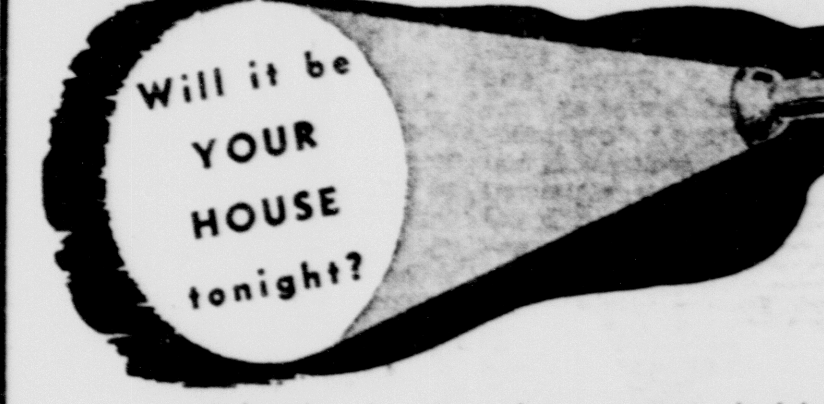

We welcome this change. It is in keeping with our policy of furnishing full information about funeral service and its costs.

Without obligation, anyone interested may come and make inquiry, or make advance arrangements if that is desired.

Davis, of 434 North Croton avenue, became the bride of Robert Dale McKinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer J. McKinney, of Cecil avenue.

The bride wore an aqua gown in Grecian drapery style with wing sleeves and silver-studded belt. With it she wore a victorian white hat with a jeweled band, elbow-length gloves, and a corsage of yellow roses and mums. She carried an embroidered chiffon handkerchief that had been her great-grandmother's and in her shoe a century-old 3 cent piece of her grandfather's.

She was attended by Mrs. James Gallagher, who wore a gray gown with pink feather hat and a corsage of pink roses and mums.

Mickey Malinak was best man. Wedding dinner for the bridal party was served at 5:30 o'clock at The Castleton, followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Aides were Miss Mary Smith and Miss Betty Kite.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Cleveland, Tenn. where Mr. McKinney will take up duties as a member of the faculty of Bob Jones college as director of the drama department.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McKinney are graduates of New Castle High school and Edinboro State Teachers college where both received B. S. degrees in public art education.

He served with the 5th and 7th Armies for 38 months, 30 months overseas in Africa, Italy, France, Germany, and Austria. He holds five campaign stars, a presidential unit citation and the bronze arrowhead.

Mrs. Mary Thompson Denman of Pittsburgh, of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania, who is a forceful and dynamic speaker, held the audience's close attention as she talked on welfare work in Pennsylvania.

She sketched the landmarks in the development of organized charitable work in the state from 1833 to the present time and in conclusion said that her conclusion, arrived at after much experience and comprehensive study, is that in spite of its extent public welfare work in Pennsylvania is still inadequate and that the state should modernize its correctional, health and welfare services.

Mrs. John Barnes, Mrs. Russell Shields, Mrs. James Cole, Mrs. Oscar Riley, Miss Dorothy Shiffer, Mrs. Dan Williams, Mrs. Arthur Walker and Miss Jane Walls were the hostesses.

Next meeting will be a bridge party and tea on February 12 at Jameson Memorial nurses home with Mrs. Earl Ruby as chairman of the hostess committee in charge of arrangements.

When Congress Reconvenes

There is little prospect that remaining sessions of the 79th Congress will be notable for happy accord between that body and the White House. More than a dozen major subjects are to be discussed before early next summer, when members hope to adjourn to return home for political campaigns.

Heading the list will be rationing and price control. Members home for the holidays are expected to have learned much concerning public reactions to both matters. The selective service act expires May 15. Continuation of the draft will not be a popular subject for discussion during an election year. There are but a few of the many problems to come before Congress, and there is certain to be wide disagreement on virtually all of them.

The list includes emergency employment legislation, fact-finding authorization to settle labor disputes, full employment legislation, price ceilings for housing, pay increases for federal employees, that old perennial, liberalization of social security; compulsory health insurance, control of atomic energy, conscription and unification of the armed forces.

New demands for further tax reduction will reach titanic proportions if Truman goes through with his rumored plan to recommend federal expenditures of $38,000,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1. If that is the best he can do in the direction of postwar economy, it will be contended, the only recourse left will be to cut off the money at the source.

Let's Have Some Expediting

President Truman was right in his recent speech to take note of the critical nature of the housing shortage. He was right also in declaring that the shortage must be overcome in the same way the nation tackled the job of mobilizing our resources for war back in 1941 and 1942. The President says we need 5,000,000 homes at once, not counting the replacement of millions of sub-standard dwellings. To obtain them as soon as possible demands extraordinary effort and the marshaling of all our forces.

But it is absurd to get dismayed at the prospect. We faced a stupendous war production job and completed it in a fashion that amazed the world. There is no reason why we cannot produce homes at the same rapid pace if we put our minds and our hands to it.

Mr. Truman has named a housing expediter to take charge nationally and he has empowered him to use every agency and resource of the government to "break the bottleneck and produce the materials for housing."

The expediter, Wilson H. Wyatt Jr., has in turn promised quick action to turn out more houses and to see to it that they are within the reach of returning veterans.

We must go on from there, swiftly. Building materials are perhaps the most pressing need. Without them nothing can be done except resort to half-baked measures such as temporary housing units. With materials at hand the builders can start running up those 5,000,000 dwellings—which they are most eager to do.

Expediting production of those materials has first demand on the expediter's attention.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

War By Pestilence

Reports issued at London, Ottawa and Washington bring to light the outlines of another carefully-kept secret of World War II. It is revealed that British, Canadian and American scientists cooperated during the struggle in an extensive program of research to develop scientists—and methods of counter-attack—for use if the axis resorted to biological warfare.

None of these reports goes into detail on the specific results achieved. The work done is covered only in general terms—for example, the diseases investigated is mentioned by name. Even the identities of those who took part in the project, with the exception of those who signed the reports, have been withheld. Just when the discoveries, and the names of the men responsible for them, will be made public has not even been indicated.

But for the present the implications of this disclosure provide considerably more food for thought than can readily be digested. For it seems clear that if the war had lasted much longer either the Germans or the Japanese might have used the bacteriological weapons they were known to be perfecting. Indeed, there are indications that the Japanese did try them out, though the evidence is not conclusive.

In any event, the threat was considered to be sufficiently real to require preparation to meet it. Thus it is only negatively reassuring to know that the challenge was taken seriously and that defense and counter-measures were devised. Evidently another war might inflict on mankind more terrible and more widespread suffering and death than did the recent holocaust.

Had the war continued that 800,000 ounces of opium recently destroyed in Japan would have meant hundreds of victorious Jap communities so common during the last days of the conflict.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

(Distributed By International News Service)

Man stumbles a little in his progress toward the brighter world as may be noted from the fact that three new alarm clocks have been invented at a time when half a million citizens have decided not to get up and go to work.

Mr. Truman, who got up and went to work on Congress on January 3, will not deliver his state of the union speech in person according to the White House. With so much flu around he is wise to avoid crowds. Particularly congressional crowds already running a high temperature.

They tell me that there are congressmen who hit the roof after the president's last speech and who still are taking their meals through the skylight.

When the president is announced at a joint session of Congress, members are expected to rise but they are not supposed to gnash their teeth and having a clerk read the message will save many a gum.

Rep. Clare Boothe Luce may not be present. She has been offered a costar role in a Hollywood picture which might look attractive after her parts in the Washington picture.

Mrs. Luce went to Washington, an expert on "the women" but she has had a little difficulty with the men. And an opportunity to play opposite George Raft should be welcomed by any little Republican girl who has been playing opposite Democratic majorities for so long.

WASHINGTON CALLING

by MARQUIS CHILDS

Protests Of Scientists Halted Bomb Measure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Shortly after the two atomic bombs were dropped over Japan, when the country was still in a state of shock and elation with the ending of the war, the May-Johnson bill for the control of atomic energy was introduced in Congress. It was written into the War Department and introduced in secrecy without notification to the civilian agencies directly concerned.

The curious circumstances surrounding the drafting and the introduction of the bill were due to the fact, according to its sponsors, that it had been thought the war would still be on and that therefore secrecy and speed would be necessary. The swift collapse of Japan overtook the atomic planners.

Would Have Slipped Through But the fact remains that if it had not been for the active protests of many scientists who had been connected with the atomic bomb project, the May-Johnson bill would in all probability have slipped through Congress. The pattern that had prevailed during the war would then have been continued into the peace.

Those who fought the May-Johnson bill believe that it would have perpetuated Major General Leslie R. Groves' control over atomic energy in peace as in war. It contained a provision that military men could serve as administrators or as members of the commission without loss of military rank. This was to get around the provision of a law adopted after the Civil War when military men filled many civil posts, at the same time retaining their full rank.

Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson belittles the fears of those who saw a military dictatorship over atomic energy. He says the clause about rank was put in to make it possible for some officers to serve on the commission if that was considered desirable.

It is quite clear, however, that under the May-Johnson bill the administrator would have been the real boss of the project. The commissioners would have been part-time advisers meeting once a month to supervise and approve or disapprove what had been done.

The two committee heads, Dr. Harold C. Urey, Nobel prize winner now of the University of Chicago, and Dr. Leo Szilard, they had clashed with Groves during the work on the project.

Just before the Congressional recess, Senator Brian McMahon, chairman of the Senate Atomic committee, put in a bill that provides a different pattern of control over atomic energy. Based on the committee's thorough hearings into the whole background of atomic power, the bill provides for a commission of five full-time members who would have complete authority over all military and peacetime uses of atomic energy except when the President should find that military necessities demanded that specific quantities of atomic weapons be turned over to the armed forces.

The bill provides that the commissioners be paid $15,000 each. General Groves, who favors the May-Johnson bill, says that this would not be enough to get men of the caliber required. Moreover, he argues that since the appointments would be "at the pleasure of the President," they would get into politics at once.

Three Men Could Direct As Groves sees it, there are three men who could direct the project. One is himself and he stresses his desire to get out since the strain of three years of unceasing work, Sundays, holidays, every day, has been too much. The other two are subordinate officers who worked with him.

Asked if there were no capable civilians, he said he could think of three possibilities with one great industrial firm and one possibility with another such firm. But they are so well paid that in General Groves' belief they would not be interested in becoming commissioners.

Both Groves and Patterson are on record as wanting to be relieved of the responsibility. Groves has done a phenomenal job for which he deserves all possible credit. Not even his severest critics deny that. He should not be saddled any longer with the burden that in peacetime is on our Democratic society but not on one military officer, but on responsible civilian authority.

A great deal of emotionalism has been stirred by the phenomenon of atomic fission. The McMahon commission has done much to steer a sane, knowledge course. It there are flaws in the McMahon bill, hearings will develop them. It is not possible to hire first-rate men for $15,000 then the amount should be raised. But it is time to get atomic energy on a peacetime basis and action should come as quickly as possible.

The State Police Say:

About the only thing to remember in meeting an approaching car is that while we are entitled to half of the highway, the driver of the other car may not give it to us. He may be inattentive, incompetent, or even intoxicated.

If we don't like the way he is driving, the wise thing to do is to pull over to the right-hand side of the road as far as possible and let him pass. Modern-day driving requires alertness. Get into the habit of making your driving a full time job.

JUVENILE LOGIC

One evening the young bachelor minister was dining with our neighbors in the next block. The older daughter Grace had been taking an unusual interest in the church since he had been assigned to the parish and her family had asked her about the minister to get the minister to "pop the question."

As they gathered around the dining table, the little sister, Ellen, kept up a running flow of meaningless chatter. When they were all seated, the minister turned to the youngest and said in a pleasant tone, "Ellen, I'm going to ask Grace now."

"Well, it's about time," agreed Ellen. "We've been expecting it for nearly a year and so has Grace."

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH DEWEIS

The very last thing I want to be is a marriage broker.

Yet, after I printed the Thanksgiving Prayer sent to me by Genevieve Stubbs of Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., she received two proposals. One was from a deaf man, 53 years old, who wrote her that she would make a pretty good life partner (without telling her why he thought that he would be one, too), and the other from a sign painter in Kentucky who owns a three-room cottage and two acres of ground.

I don't think that Genevieve will accept either of the two suitors, so if any of you unattached lady readers of mine are interested, you may write to her and get their addresses.

By the way, I always receive so much favorable comment whenever I write anything about my little dog, Deuce, that I want you to read this little poem which my Blue Ridge Summit friend just sent me. It is headed "Tramp" and this is how it goes:

Father in thy story tent
I kneel, a humble suppliant—
A dog has died this day on earth.
Oh, little death,
Yet very dear—
Gather him in your arms
If only for a while.
I fear he will be lonely—
Shield him with thy smile.

Somehow I looked up when I read this crude little verse. Maybe it was because my own little fellow is in the hospital again, and I am afraid he won't last much longer. He is twelve years old and has developed a bad case of dropsy, a disease, which, according to the veterinarian, is incurable and usually results in death.

We could have had him drained, but the doctor said it is a very painful operation and doesn't do much good and I can't quite bear the idea of hurting the little fellow who has given us so much love and affection.

We wanted to visit him over the holidays, but Dr. Pearce advised us not to. He would only be wanting to go home with us and feel twice as unhappy if we left him again.

I read so much about vivisection these days.

What a brutal, cowardly and heartless thing vivisection is!

There is so little gained by it, and I wonder whether the agonized eyes of the dogs who ask so little and give so much, do not keep their torturers awake at night in shame and remorse.

What a science, with all its potential blessings, bring so much misery and suffering to the world? (Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

What People Say

(International News Service)

LONDON—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt: I believe the United Nations organization will be of infinite value in furthering the cause of peace, but without the will of the people of the world behind it, it cannot be successful.

WASHINGTON—Elliott Adair, Chief of the Army Postal Service, said today that the Army Postal Service is planning to issue a series of stamps to honor the men and women who served in the Army during World War I.

NEW YORK—Ernest T. Weir, chairman, National Steel Corporation, urged revision of the Wagner Labor Relations Act today.

WASHINGTON—Senator Edwin C. Johnson (R) of Colorado, calls for investigation of Army policy curtailing discharges. "Congress should get on top of this situation. Congress should be told why we are keeping American troops at certain points in the world."

THOSE FOREIGN LOANS The stock answer of the "do-gooders" with other people's money to the opposition of loans to foreign countries is, "You don't want to let the people of Europe starve."

There's no intention of letting hungry people starve. Our program of relief fully recognizes that fact. We have contributed a billion dollars to the UNRRA and are about to contribute an additional 250 million in full payment of our first year's obligation under that organization. Already UNRRA has insisted upon an additional $125,000,000 for next year while many other countries obligated to contribute their quota have defaulted their payments.

It was pointed out at the time when the organization was being effected that the United States would have but one vote out of forty-nine. And that the American people would prefer to distribute their own charities rather than put them under the control of an organization whose members represented so many conflicting rival interests as now evidenced by their appeals for relief.

Instead of making a loan of $3,600,000,000 to Britain to nationalize her industries and a $6,000,000,000 loan to help Russia with her policy of government ownership, the American people prefer to spend the amount of the proposed loan at home, if necessary, for food and clothing to relieve the desperate situation that now confronts the poor people of Europe and of China.

When spent at home for such purposes, it gives employment to labor and furnishes a market for farm production. In addition to that, the policy of direct assistance and control of the extent of that assistance within our ability to give will meet with the approval of the people. Such a policy will not promote competition with our own labor of so-called states such as Britain and Russia—Eads, Okla., News.

Navy Still Fighting To Kill Merger Plan
Marines Also Balk At Army "Absorption"

How To Catch An Alligator Fully Explained

By HELEN ESSARY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The navy still hasn't given up its efforts to kill or cripple any bill designed to merge the armed forces.

The navy, in fact, plans an unprecedented "selling" job to the nation.

Despite its present losing battle, the navy still hopes to salvage something out of the melee to assure it some autonomy. The Marine Corps is more worried than privately that they are not getting a plan under which they will be absorbed into the army.

At present, the navy is fighting for time, hoping that their cries of "military dictatorship" eventually will be heard in Congress through the press and radio.

Pearl Harbor Probers Tired The Pearl Harbor investigating committee is expected to take one month to seven weeks to prepare its report after the last witness has been heard.

The committee, tired and weary, is driving toward adjournment. It has been calling Adm. Harold R. Stark, 1941 chief of naval operations, Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short and Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, Pearl Harbor army and navy commanders respectively. Later Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York will probably be called.

The hearings will probably end before the February 15 deadline. But Senator Ferguson (R) of Michigan and Senator Brewster (R) of Maine have served notice that they want a comprehensive report prepared.

They feel that the committee's findings will be the ultimate conclusions that must stand up in history.

Democratic leaders are confident that Congress will approve the $4,400,000,000 loan to Great Britain. They intend to offer legislation when the second session of the 77th Congress convenes in January.

There is no prospect of a treaty. That definitely is out. They feel that a hard fight will be followed by approval when it is shown that the loan is essential for American-British trade.

Plans to determine the nationality of Europeans in future months will be more effective than measures taken after World War I.

In the 1920s, large numbers of Poles claimed residence in Brooklyn, N. Y. A fast-thinking official made them tell the name of the Brooklyn Doofer shortstop. Those who knew came in; those who didn't stayed out.

The present problem is more complicated. In the Sudetenland, for instance, the Czechs wished to retain many skilled German glass-blowers. The Russians objected. A state department official asked how the nationality of these persons would be decided, remarked, facetiously, "By the Russians."

With his tongue in his cheek, a Pacific veteran advanced this method of catching an alligator. First, you must get a pair of swimming trunks, a dull book, a telescope, a pair of tweezers and a match box. Then you do this:

You go wading in an infested stream. Then you walk up the bank to a tent where you read the book and fall asleep.

The alligator follows. Being curious, he reads the book and falls asleep. You'll probably wake up first. When you do look through the wrong end of the telescope at the alligator.

When you find him small enough to pick up with the tweezers, you put him in the matchbox.

Easy And Attractive Books with very easy vocabulary and many attractive pictures, which may be found at a public library, or bought at small cost, also afford good reading practice material at home for the child in the primary grades.

Any busy mother should gladly give the word which the child, following her about the house with his book, spells out for her. Always it is better when the child seeks such help than when the parent sets the youngster to reading as a task. Better for the child to ask questions connected with his learning than for the parent to do so.

You may learn from the school that your young child is not doing so well in reading, spelling or arithmetic, or in all of them. You may be told this child "does not pay strict attention at school" or "is hard as he should be." Wise teachers don't, of course, make such vague reports.

No Time To Scold If your child's teacher does, it is no time to scold, or punish the child, or admonish him to pay better attention or work harder at school. It is time for patience and understanding. Find out from the teacher just what the child's specific difficulty is and how you can help him at home day after day to win more success at his books.

Try to find out just how things are done in each subject at school. If the child insists your way is not the school's way, don't impose your way. Have just one purpose, to help the child so he will gain more success at school.

When you do sit down to help your child read, spell or do number work, be sure you are very calm. Watch your insides. Never let your voice rise, nor allow yourself even to feel vexed if the child lags or makes mistakes. If you will put yourself in his place you won't. You must keep him hopeful. He must feel he is achieving. You must set the stage so he will go into this at length in my bulletin, "Parents and the Child's Homework," to be had in a stamped envelope by addressing me in a stamped, self-addressed envelope, sent to me at 235 East 45th Street, New York, N. Y.

From time to time I have also covered to my special home helps in reading, spelling and numbers, each also to be had for postage.

Once regular homework assignment begins, see that your child goes at it at a regular time each evening before school. You can see how necessary it is to train the child from early years

Start Action On Acquisition Of Deshon Annex

First move toward the possible acquisition by the city of Deshon Hospital annex property for living quarters for married ex-servicemen occurred today when a representative of the Third Service Command, U. S. Army, Baltimore, in company of City Engineer John Z. Street, viewed the property to make an appraisal.

He conferred with Mayor John F. Haven, Property Director Joseph D. Alexander and other councilmen.

According to Mr. Alexander, the city has the first chance to bid on the property under a lease which existed between the city and NYA and later the War department who assumed the lease.

After the property is viewed this morning, the representative will report to the Third Service Command when negotiation may be furthered.

The living quarters for married ex-servicemen was advanced by the GNCA in a conference with the mayor and councilmen some time ago.

According to reports, the buildings which formerly housed wounded soldiers could be converted into this purpose and serve a big need here.

Truman To Give Annual Messages To Congress Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS)—President Truman will present his annual state of the union message to Congress on Jan. 17. The budget message will be submitted to the legislators Jan. 21.

The White House said today that the President has not yet made a final decision on whether or not he will present his state of the union message in person. Secretary Charles G. Ross previously said that it is "improbable" that the President will go before the Congress in person.

The President will hold a budget seminar on Jan. 18 to outline the new budget recommendations to correspondents. Ross said this morning that this year's budget recommendations will be "highly complicated."

Gaston Post To Have Open House

Plans Are Laid For Big Welcome Home Celebration For Returning Veterans Soon

Plans were laid at last night's meeting of the Perry S. Gaston Post, American Legion, for a big open house celebration for returned World War Two veterans in the near future. Commander Leon A. Drumm has named Past Commanders C. C. Swezey and A. Lewis Conn as chairmen of the event.

No new developments in the home situation were announced by the committee at last night's meeting, although several new locations are being investigated by the committee.

The post took action urging the school board to withhold action on the removal of housing units on Newell avenue for the present, in an effort to relieve the critical situation which exists at the present time.

Membership increases since the last meeting shows that the post now needs but 150 more members to reach the membership quota assigned them by the state department and hope to reach this by next meeting night.

Veterans May Buy Own Housing Site In Washington, D. C.

Ex-Servicemen Hope To Purchase
Own 'Vet's Town' In Nation's Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS)—Veterans of the second world war were given another chance today to see whether they will be able to plunk down their money and buy themselves a "vet's town" in the nation's capital.

A group of veterans hopes to solve its own housing problem by buying McLean Gardens, an 11 million dollar government housing project from Defense Homes Corporation.

DHC advised the veterans that their bid for the project could not be considered because their offer was without specific information as to price or terms and advised them to complete the bid.

Veterans interested in the outcome of the attempt to purchase the sprawling housing development. If successful, the move will probably inspire similar action elsewhere.

The Washington move originated with Amvets, a fledgling veterans organization limited to ex-servicemen of the second world war. Tenancy in the project, however, would be open to veterans of the second world war regardless of affiliation.

Have Backing
Amvets claims to have the backing of a million and a half dollars from veterans interested in the development. A capital bank is accepting $25 "deposits" from vets applying for membership in the cooperative venture.

McLean Gardens is a spacious, attractive development housing 723 family units and 1,100 "dormitory" residents. The houses are red brick and extend over a considerable area.

The streets are paved and the houses spaced by trees, grass and wide lawns. The project is near the center of the capital and a street car line has a terminal within the property.

The Amvets plan would give each stockholder one share in the corporation entitling him to an apartment plus the income from the "dormitory" which might possibly be turned into a veterans' hotel if the Amvets bid is accepted.

Major Moore Is Guest Of Lions

Local Officer Who Left Here With Battery F., Has Had Interesting War Role

WILL RETURN TO DUTY NEXT WEEK

Major Robert C. Moore, who left here with Battery F., 190th Field Artillery as a second lieutenant in February, 1941, and who returned a major after service with General Patton's Third Army in command of a tank battalion, spoke to the New Castle Lion's club on his experiences overseas and conditions as he found them in Germany.

Major Moore, who has the silver and bronze star medals, Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf clusters, and Croix de Guerre, will return to duty January 15, for service in Germany with the army of occupation.

Praises Patton
Speaking about General Patton, whose death last month saddened Americans, Major Moore stated that while General Patton was a little unethical and unorthodox in his methods, he was a real fighting man. He was a rough fighter himself and was rough with his men, but he wouldn't ask them to do anything he wouldn't do himself and proved this by his action on the field of battle, where according to Major Moore, he seemed to lead a charmed life. He was right in the thick of things, most of the time.

Discussing the many displaced persons in Europe, Major Moore said their plight was indeed pitiable. Most of them carrying their entire possession in a bundle under their arms. When the U. S. Army took over, they had as many as 132,000 of these people in a single corps area, and had to clothe them with discarded army uniforms. They really need the clothing which is being collected now, and don't ask for much. He stated that he had seen babies born in railroad stations and similar places, with nothing to wrap them in. They don't know what it is to have a home, enough to eat, or enough to wear.

The same, he stated is true with the Germans. It is like looking at an ant hill, one wonders where they come from and where they are going, he stated.

These people would be happy to get any kind of clothing, regardless of how old it is, as long as it is warm.

Russia Hard Hit

In reply to a question about the Russians, he stated that he felt they were doing as good a job as was possible for them under the circumstances in their treatment of the Germans and dispossessed persons. He stated that Russia was hard hit themselves, and have been trying to rehabilitate the Poles who were the worst off, of any people in Europe.

The Germans, he said are being given an opportunity to govern themselves, and have officials over them they have elected themselves, who are responsible to the U. S. military authorities. All persons who were known to be Nazi prior to 1937 are being removed and placed in concentration camps, the feeling being that they are the real dyed-in-the-wool Nazis. Others who accepted Nazism after that time, are felt to have been forced into acceptance of Nazism.

The Germans, he stated in answer to a question, treat their own people selfishly, because they are all hard up now, and do not want to take refugees from other parts of Germany into their homes.

Young Medical Officers Will Be Called To Duty

More Than 5000 To Be Summoned For Active Duty As Replacements By July 1

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS)—The war department announced today that more than 5000 young medical officers will be called to active duty by July 1 as replacements for medical personnel eligible for discharge.

The department disclosed also that the army's specialized medical training program from which the affected officers were graduated will be discontinued on that date.

An additional 3300 enlisted men now assigned to medical training units are scheduled to receive the degree of doctor of medicine by July 1. This group will be called to active duty at the completion of their internship in hospitals.

Enlisted men assigned for instruction in the freshman, sophomore and junior classes in medicine are to be separated from the program in March.

Will Be Transferred
Those planning to continue their medical studies will be transferred to the enlisted reserve corps and released from active military duty to permit continuance of their medical training in a civilian status.

Men separated from the medical training who do not plan to continue their studies will be transferred to other military duties and continued on active status until they become eligible for discharge under current war department policies.

The 5000 medical graduates to be called to active duty this summer now are completing their training by serving internships and residencies in civilian hospitals on an inactive status.

Rear Adm. C. R. Rawlings, chief of Industrial Relations in the U. S. Naval Bureau of Ships, was scheduled to address the group later.

PULASKI

Figures released by the Pennsylvania Bureau of Public Assistance show that there were 1763 persons in Lawrence county on the state relief as of September, 1945. This is 1.3 per cent of the county's population.

Of this total 205 persons received general assistance, and 820 received old-age benefits. There were 592 children receiving aid, while 140 blind persons were the recipients of benefits.

Checks for the same period totalled $43,981.66, of which $4,169.39 was for general assistance, $24,391.67 for old-age, $9,871.90 for dependent children and $5,548.70 for the blind.

EROSION CONTROL "INSURES" TOPSOIL

Farmers who insure their buildings against possible loss, and offer rewards for the return of starved animals are beginning to exercise the same diligence in the protection of their soil.

Insuring the topsoil for use of future generations, is possible, by practicing erosion control. Farmers know that "runaway" soil grows no crops, and thin soil means thin pocketbooks.

Simple devices, including use of contour strips, have proved effective insurance against erosion losses on a number of Lawrence county farms. Farmers interested in establishing erosion control programs

Flood Control Program For State Planned

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—(INS)—A $23,000,000 flood control program on Pennsylvania waterways was being drafted by army engineers and the state department of forests and waters.

The General Assembly has earmarked $15,500,000 for possible flood projects while the balance has been approved by congress for expenditure in Pennsylvania.

Richard C. Bailey, chief engineer for the state water and power resources board, indicated the control program would be accelerated following a meeting next week with army engineers to discuss plans for a million-dollar federal-state project on the Susquehanna river at Williamsport and a similar program costing $500,000 at Sunbury.

Outline State's Part

The state's responsibility in constructing retaining walls, dikes and pumping stations would be outlined, he said. Under the program, Pennsylvania is slated to bear half of the costs of acquiring land rights of way, easements and damages.

Secretary James A. Kell hinted that announcement of additional projects financed solely by the state would be forthcoming before February.

No report was given as to the extent of the work proposed by Kell, but it was indicated that a fairly sizeable amount of construction would be undertaken if the recommendations were approved by Gov. Edward Martin.

The state was slated to benefit, in the meantime, from a federally-financed $3,000,000 reservoir to be built on the Conemaugh river and a similar structure costing $523,000 on the Youngsberry river. Approximately $500,000 will be spent by the federal government to protect Punxsutawney.

Meanwhile, Bailey reported flood control projects to protect south Scranton and Moosic were "95 per cent completed" during 1945. The programs, partially financed by the state, cost $111,000 at south Scranton and $22,000 at Moosic.

Permits were issued for the construction of 23 new dams by private companies or cities, he added.

Legion Will Ask Use Of War-Born Army Camp Sites

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—(INS)—The State American Legion's policy committee planned today to ask federal and state officials to use war-born army camps and housing projects as sites for schools to provide instruction for veterans unable to enter colleges because of limited enrollments.

Department Commander James P. Murray said the committee viewed "with much concern the recent statements of college heads that their institutions are closing to the enrollment of additional veterans."

"Requests will be made to the state and federal authorities to utilize establishments created during the war period, adequately staffed and conveniently located, to alleviate this educational emergency," Murray explained.

The committee also planned to call upon Pennsylvania's congressional delegation to help assure the approval of a budget adequate to staff U. S. employment service offices in the state with former servicemen "for the purpose of affording more efficient service to veterans in obtaining jobs."

Murray reported that the legion would establish "referral centers" in at least six Pennsylvania cities to assist in the rehabilitation training, education and employment of veterans.

Pittsburgh Coaches Ordered To Return To Jobs At Once

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9.—(INS)—Pittsburgh high school athletic coaches today were debating the decision of either "coach after school or suffer the consequence." The decision was made yesterday at a meeting called by School Superintendent Earl A. Dimmick of all principals and physical education teachers.

He read a letter from N. R. Criss, solicitor for the Board of Education, which stated in part:

"Any teacher who has been given the required number of free periods off, and refuses after school assignments is subject to dismissal."

Dimmick added: "I am compelled to instruct you to get back to work without delay on the schedule given by your principals."

The action to strike in 30 days came yesterday when the 50-man executive board of the Independent Association of Employees of the Duquesne Light company approved the strike vote taken by 3,200 employees to enforce their demands for a 20 per cent pay increase. The company offered 7½ per cent which was rejected.

Union President George C. Mueller said strike notice will be served on the government today and 30 days from now the Steel City's street cars, lights, steam heating and electric power plants will be shut down unless the wage demand is met.

All Dogs Must Be Licensed Here By Middle Of Month

January 15 Is Deadline, Dog Law Investigator Howard E. McLure States Today

January 15 is the deadline for dog owners in Lawrence county to have their canines licensed, after which prosecutions will be instituted, Pennsylvania dog law investigator Howard E. McLure stated today.

Some leniency has been shown during the past few years because of the war, but investigators have been ordered to take more rigid measures to see that the law is enforced this year.

All dogs over six months of age must have a license, McLure states, and after the 15th of January, dog owners face arrest if their canines are not licensed.

MARKET RESUMES

UPSURGE TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(INS)—The uptick in late in forenoon trading today when stocks continued the upsurge which began yesterday.

A total of 740,000 shares was traded in the first hour with prices advancing 1 to 2 points. The sweeping market brought out some profit taking in the second hour but the majority of leaders held close to their earlier highs.

Steel issues netted gains ranging from 1/2 to more than 1 1/2. Bethlehem Steel touched a new top. General Motors tacked on 1 1/2. Rails were active and fractionally higher. Utilities sought higher ground with North American Co. adding nearly a point.

Bismarck Sea Veteran Now Has Own Milk Dairy

Ace Pacific Pilot Not So Sure He Should Have Exchanged Khaki For Mufti

By LEE VAN ATTA
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)
AUGUSTA, Ky., Jan. 9.—In the decisive battle of the Bismarck sea, 23-year-old Captain Thomas Cline led a formation of nine Billy Mitchell bombers. His flights alone sank an enemy light cruiser, two merchantmen and a destroyer in a single afternoon.

Cline was one of only 15 American pilots at the controls of Mitchell bombers during the Bismarck sea engagement, a member of the hand-picked Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gen. George Kenney termed the "decisive element" in the historic clash.

Today, civilian Thomas Cline is co-proprietor of a small but thriving dairy in Augusta, an enterprise which finds him serving more than 1,700 customers every morning. He not only is co-proprietor but chief milker, pilot of the delivery wagon, chief washer of the dairy's hundreds of bottles, director of the dairy's sanitary section and head of the finance division.

Easy Task
By comparison, he claims the battle of the Bismarck sea was a relatively easy task. Cline left the army two months ago because he had "an unquenchable desire for civilian clothes." Now he's not so sure he was right. The speed of an airplane, he says, is far more inviting than the speed of newly-arriving milk.

Actually, on points and on the basis of health, Cline could have said farewell to blouse and insignia months ago. His medals alone nearly gave him a critical score while his four years of service were a certain guarantee. Added to that, he'd had malaria so many times army doctors regarded him as something of a guinea pig for new fever remedies.

But he elected to remain until the war was won and only the cessation of Pacific hostilities finally decided him to revert to civilian life.

Past Memories
Memories of a past which knew combat at 300-miles-an-hour, on-the-waves speeds and which had the stimulating uncertainty of an unexpectedly strong cocktail are revived with rariety. The ones who would remember the Bismarck sea best are scattered, literally, to the four corners of the globe.

Col. Paul I. Gunn, the brilliant 49-year-old "pappy" who conceived the eight-gun Mitchell strafe which won the Bismarck battle, is in Manila as president of an inter-Philippine airline.

Col. Richard H. Ellis, Cline's wingman in the low-level force, is in an army hospital in California, victim of internal disorder caused by chronic dysentery. His return to his home in Laurel, Del., after three and a half years of overseas service may be delayed for weeks.

Col. Charles Howe of Ventura, Calif., Cline's co-pilot in the Bismarck sea attack, is in Japan as commander of the veteran third attack group, a member of the air occupation forces.

The graduates of the Bismarck sea school of flying have spread almost as far as the wreckage of the 22 ships they destroyed. Only Cline, in fact, has settled down to the routine of being a peacetime, small-scale entrepreneur. He's not certain the idea of a peaceful existence appeals to him.

War Prisoners Will Leave U. S. From West Coast

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS)—The War Department announced today that thousands of German and Italian war prisoners now held in western states will leave from the west coast for their homeland to save train space for returning American veterans.

The department said that arrangements have been completed to use trains which cannot be used in the return of American troops to move about 1,650 German POWs from Wyoming and Colorado to the Seattle port of embarkation.

The Army Transportation Corps plans the movement of an additional 6,650 Germans from Greeley and Camp Carson, Colo., to the Los Angeles port of embarkation.

The first typewriter on record was one designed by Henry Mill, who patented it in 1714.
